Solemn farewell

City pays final tributes to Mayor Welch

"There may be people who love Madison as much as Damon. There's no one who loved Madison more than Damon," close friend Randy Reed told the more than 700 mourners at the funeral services Sunday for two-term Mayor Damon Welch, who died unexpectedly last week.

The late mayor's love for his immediate family and his other families, including the City of Madison, his church community, his country or elsewhere in the city that was home from the day he was born, was noted repeatedly during tributes last weekend.

While the shock of the unexpected death of the mayor last Wednesday morning still reflected on its faces, the community pulled together to say goodbye to and honor the two-term councilmember who became the 38th man to serve as Madison's mayor.

Tributes officially began Saturday morning with a private visitation at midmorning for city employees, elected officials and others who worked with the mayor. More than 100 people gathered to pay respects and offer condolences to the mayor's family as his flag-draped casket rested in front of the City Council dais, where it had been placed by a procession led by city police and firefighters through streets prepared by city workers from multiple departments.

Outside the visitation, passers-by in town for the weekend mingled with residents on their way to the myriad of events last weekend: the annual Chautauqua Festival of Art, Old Court Days, the Jefferson County Public Library's book sale, the many Madison storefronts open for business, Madison's Air Show or the ground-breaking ceremony for the Cotton Mill project on Vaughn Drive, which will be turned into a Fairfield by Marriott Hotel.

Several visitors stopped to ask what was happening at City Hall when they saw parts of streets blocked, police and fire vehicles, limousines and a hearse. When they heard the response, many stopped respectfully for a moment. As the procession carried the

A project that's taken years in the making and the dedicated effort of dozens reached a ceremonial milestone Saturday with the groundbreaking on a $21 million project to rehabilitate the 1884 Eagle Cotton Mill building on Madison's riverfront into a boutique hotel and conference center by 2021.

Developers, investors, bankers, governmental leaders and a crowd of about 60 were on hand to turn soil and trigger what will be a whirlwind transformation over the next several months. Local residents can expect to see great change in the building by the spring of 2020 and a grand reopening with an entirely new purpose about the same time the following year.

The three-story, 104,000-square-foot building located at 108 St. Michaels Avenue overlooking the Ohio River, served as a twine and fabric factory, shipping its goods along the Ohio River until closing in 1937. The building was later purchased by Madison-based Meese Inc. which used it for manufacturing until the early 1980s before remaining vacant the past 30 years.

Located in Madison's huge National Historic Landmark District, the site came to be included on Indiana Landmarks' list of 10 Most Endangered Historic Structures as multiple city administrations struggled to find a developer and investors to save the brick and wooden structure from decay and ruin.

That finally happened earlier this year when Ron Batemen of Riverton LLC, a retired Alaskan with ties to Indiana, stepped forward and started working with the city — and just about anyone else who could help — to put the project together.

The project's potential, the city's Stellar community designation and related economic development financing helped the developers, investors and future tenant, Dora Hospitality and Fairfield by Marriott, nudge the project toward Saturday's start that will conclude with a 2021 finish.

Riverton will receive $4.75 million in tax credits, which the city plans to match with $4 million in cash through a bonding process, and $750,000 in city tax abatements and infrastructure projects near the development site.

Bateman, who moved to Madison with his wife, Marlene, to retire, said he got involved in the project through the spirit of volunteerism and love of community that runs rampant in Madison, but in the end it took a "herd of people" to get to Saturday's groundbreaking.

"One of the things that impressed me about Madison when we got here was the love that people have in this town. Evidence for that is the high level of volunteerism that you see all over town and I began thinking what could I do?" Bateman, an architect by trade, said. "And it occurred to me that this kind of project fits my life experience and maybe this crazy project is something that could happen, so I began to look at it.

"And of course I was thinking in terms of housing which is what my experience was to this point. But Nicole (Schell) said 'No, no, no, no.' and (Mayor Damon Welch) said 'No, no, no. We need a hotel.' And I thought, 'Well, I don't know much about hotels but let's see how far we get and if it's absolutely impossible maybe they'll let us do housing.' But to my surprise, and it seems almost like a miracle, we are here today with a hotel project cued up."

Bateman enlisted his development and construction partners from projects in Alaska, John McGrew and Glen Gellert, and then signed on hotel management company Dora Hospitality of Indianapolis, who brought Marriott to the table. Vince Dora said being awarded a Fairfield franchise will really help boost the hotel economically,

California defies NCAA, lets athletes sign endorsement deals

By ADAM BEAM
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Defying the NCAA, California's governor signed a first-in-the-nation law Monday that will let college athletes hire agents and make money from endorsements — a move that could upend amateur sports in the U.S. and trigger a legal challenge.

Under the law, which takes effect in 2023, students at public and private universities in the state will be allowed to sign deals with sneaker companies, soft drink makers or other advertisers and profit from their names and likenesses, just like the pros.

Democratic Gov. Gavin Newsom and others cast the law as an attempt to bring more fairness to big-money college sports and let athletes share in the wealth they create for their schools.

The NCAA, which has 1,100 member schools and claims nearly a half-million athletes, responded with an official statement.

"As a membership organization, the NCAA agrees changes are needed to continue to support student-athletes, but improvement needs to happen on a national level through the NCAA's rules-making process. ...As more states consider their own specific legislation related to this topic, it is clear that a patchwork of different laws from different states will make unattainable the goal of providing a fair and level playing field for 1,100 campuses and nearly half a million student-athletes nationwide."

Newsom predicted other states will introduce similar legislation, and two lawmakers in South Carolina have announced plans to do so.

The California law applies to all sports, though the big money to be made is in football and basketball. It bars schools from kicking athletes off the team if they get paid. It does not apply to community colleges and prohibits athletes from accepting endorsement deals that conflict with their schools' existing contracts.

Recall issued for pork products

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Federal officials say a company is recalling 744 pounds of ready-to-eat pork products which may be contaminated with Listeria monocytogenes. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service announced late Saturday that the products by Fisher Packing Company in Redkey were shipped statewide. They were packaged in late August. The products include smoked ham, smoked ham shanks and Canadian bacon. They have the establishment number "74SEIN" inside the USDA mark of inspection. The products should be thrown away or returned. Federal officials say the problem was discovered when the company found that a sample confirmed positive for Listeria monocytogenes. Consumption of foods contaminated with Listeria monocytogenes can cause a serious infection primarily affecting the elderly, people with weak immune systems and pregnant women. There have been no confirmed illness reports.

Developer scraps $1.4B project at old GM plant

INDIANAPOLIS — A developer has scrapped plans to turn the site of a former General Motors Co. stamping plant in Indianapolis into a $1.4 billion mixed-used development. Ambrose Property Group had intended to build offices, retail space, residential housing and hotels at the 103-acre site directly west of downtown Indianapolis. But the company announced Friday that it is selling the site along the White River to focus on its e-commerce and industrial real estate business. The site once housed the GM Stamping Plant, where the automaker at one time employed about 5,600 workers. The Indianapolis factory closed in 2011 and was largely demolished in 2013. Mayor Joe Hogsett's chief of staff, Thomas Cook, says it's disappointing Ambrose Property Group chose not to proceed with the redevelopment project.

IU naming building for ex-President Brand

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana University is honoring its former President Myles Brand by putting his name on a Bloomington campus building. Current IU President Michael McRobbie says the naming of Myles Brand Hall recognizes Brand's role in the 1999 creation of what is now the School of Informatics, Computing and Engineering. The building being named for Brand has been known as Informatics East. Brand was IU's president for eight years before becoming the NCAA's president in 2003. He held that position until his death in 2009 from cancer at the age of 67. He gained attention for the firing of longtime IU basketball coach Bob Knight in 2000. Josh Brand said he appreciates the building honor so his father's name will always be part of IU.

Work on track for WWII naval vessel's move

EVANSVILLE — Officials say work could be completed in November on a project allowing the relocation of a restored World War II naval vessel to a more prominent site along the Ohio River in downtown Evansville. Crews are now building a visitors center and barges so the LST 325 troop landing ship can move to the former site of the Tropicana Evansville casino boat. Evansville Port Authority chairman Pat Wathen tells the Evansville Courier & Press that the $3.6 million project is on track and within budget after high initial construction bids delayed work. The ship took part in the 1944 D-Day landings in France and has been based in Evansville since 2005. .

Man pleads guilty to providing gun in killing

LEBANON — A man accused of providing a handgun used to kill a sheriff's deputy has pleaded guilty to all but one of the charges he faced. John Ball, 23, pleaded guilty Friday in Boone County to five drug-related charges and a charge of providing a firearm to an ineligible person. Under his plea agreement, prosecutors agreed to drop a murder charge Ball had faced. Anthony Baumgardt of Lebanon was sentenced to life in prison in May after pleading guilty to murder in the March 2018 killing of Boone County Sheriff's Deputy Jacob Pickett. Prosecutors said Ball gave Baumgardt a handgun prior to Pickett's shooting despite knowing Baumgardt wasn't eligible to buy one. The 34-year-old deputy was shot while pursuing Baumgardt with his police dog.

Man found with drugs, synthetic urine

HARTFORD CITY— A 49-year-old man on probation is facing new drug charges including possession of synthetic urine. The Star Press reports Kirk Allen Boughman was charged Friday with felony possession of methamphetamine and three misdemeanors. The Hartford City man was out on probation when authorities conducted a "compliance search" of his apartment at the request of his probation officer. Officers allege that they found drugs and synthetic urine, which is used by drug users in attempts to pass court-ordered testing. A hearing was set for Monday. Online court records did not list an attorney for Boughman.

Saint Francis getting 1st male president

FORT WAYNE— Northeastern Indiana's University of Saint Francis is getting a male president for the first time in its nearly 130-year history. School officials announced Monday that the Rev. Eric Albert Zimmer will become the Fort Wayne school's president on July 1, 2020, after Sister Elise Kriss retires following 27 years at the school. The Journal Gazette reports that Zimmer, who's a Jesuit priest, will become the first male president of the school, which was founded in 1890. He currently serves as associate teaching professor at the Mendoza College of Business at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend. Zimmer also leads St. Patrick Catholic Church in Walkerton and is a captain in the U.S. Air Force Reserve, an avid cyclist and a professionally trained bicycle mechanic.

Kentucky

Health officials urge flu vaccinations

FRANKFORT — Health officials are urging Kentuckians to get vaccinated against the flu. The Department for Public Health said in a statement last week that there had already been 154 lab-confirmed flu cases in the state. The official flu season started Sunday and runs through May 16, 2020. Health Commissioner Angela Dearinger says vaccination is the best way to prevent the virus, which can be debilitating and sometimes deadly. Symptoms include fever, cough, sore throat, sneezing and body aches. Although vaccination is recommended for everyone 6 months old and over, officials say populations at higher risk for complications include young children, older adults and pregnant women. Last year, Kentucky reported 194 flu-related deaths, two of which were children.

Thousands of animals killed in barn fire

WURTLAND — An overnight fire in a barn has killed thousands of animals including 3,000 quails. News outlets report the fire broke out at Bonzo Farm early Saturday morning. A press release from Greenup Volunteer Fire Department says multiple fire departments responded to the blaze, which involved several barns. Raceland Police say besides the quails, 1,000 chukars and 100 chickens were also killed in the blaze. Neighbor Kayla Wilburn says she could feel the heat from the fire at her home and the flames were about 80 feet in the air. The cause of the fire is under investigation. Bonzo Farm was purchased by the Bonzo family around 1906. Wilburn says the barn was a symbol in the community.

Fort Campbell soldiers returning from Iraq

FORT CAMPBELL — Soldiers from the 101st Airborne Division are returning to Kentucky this week after nine months in Iraq. Fort Campbell says the soldiers from the 1st Brigade Combat Team are scheduled to return Monday, when a welcome home ceremony will be held. The Army post is located on the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

2020 hemp program applications in Nov.

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Kentucky officials say growers and processors wanting to participate in the state's 2020 hemp program can start applying for a license in mid-November. State Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles says an online application is being added to the application process with the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. Quarles says the department will accept grower applications from Nov. 15 to March 15 next year. Processor applications also can be submitted starting Nov. 15. The department says it eventually hopes to move to a year-round processor application.

Kentucky has been at the forefront of hemp's resurgence. Hemp was legalized as a farm commodity as part of the new federal farm bill.

Indy roads to get $12M more at cost of other cities

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana officials who recently discovered an error in the state's road-funding distribution formula are shifting millions of dollars to the city of Indianapolis at the expense of other cities and towns.

Indianapolis is projected to see a net gain of about $12 million for road projects next year, an increase of about 23% from 2019.

But the change also means every other Indiana city and town, including local government units within Indianapolis that operate independently, will see an 8% reduction in their allotment of certain road-funding dollars. The decrease will impact local government budgets starting next year.

"Cities and towns in every county will be impacted," said State Auditor Tera Klutz. "The important part was that they are all in budget prep right now, so it's important for them to know."

The complication dates to 1970, when the Indiana General Assembly approved the formation of Unigov, which merged the governments of Indianapolis and Marion County.

State law says Indiana's auditor should use the population within what is identified as the fire special service district — the geographical area that the fire department covers — to calculate the distribution of certain tax funds instead of the entire consolidated city's population.

The district further expanded in the mid-2000s to include five more townships. But as the state auditor's office was preparing for the 2020 census this summer officials realized that the road-funding formula had not been updated to reflect the fire district's larger population.

Indianapolis could receive as much as 80% more than was initially expected from the Motor Vehicle Highway Account, one of two state funds that will be affected by the change, Klutz said.

City leaders said they are pleased about the increase but warned that it still won't be enough to address all of Indianapolis' ongoing infrastructure problems.

"It is significant relevant to what we were receiving," said Thomas Cook, chief of staff for Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett. "It is not so significant to address the underfunding of our road infrastructure."

The additional dollars are not currently included into next year's budget, Cook said, but officials will look to add them after January once they receive the first distribution. It's unclear how those extra dollars will be used.

RV shipments to dealers down 15% in August 2019

By ROGER SCHNEIDER
Goshen News

RESTON, Va. — The RV Industry Association's August survey of manufacturers found that total RV shipments ended the month with 33,674 wholesale shipments, a decrease of 15% from the 39,636 units shipped last August, according to a news release from the organization.

Towable RVs, led by conventional travel trailers, totaled 29,448 units for the month, a decrease of 15.1% compared to last August's total of 34,677 units.

Motorhomes finished the month with 4,226 units, down 14.8% compared to the August 2018 total of 4,959 units.

Through August, RV shipments have reached 278,299 units, down 20.0% from the 347,749 units at this point last year.

Park model RVs finished the month up 27.5% compared to last August with 390 shipments to retailers.

Year-to-date, RV shipments to dealers are down 20% compared to the same time in 2018.

The news of the decline came after the RV industry, mostly based in Elkhart County, ended its annual open house for dealers this past week.

Gathering feasibility study costs

Madison County wrestles with jail

By KEN DE LA BASTIDE
(Anderson) Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — Madison County officials are starting to gather information on the potential costs of a feasibility study to construct a new jail.

With the recent decision not to explore the potential of constructing a regional jail with Henry County, Madison County officials are trying to determine the costs of a study.

The current Madison County Jail was opened in 1978 with 207 beds, but has frequently been well over the inmate population the facility was designed to house.

At the county commissioners' meeting on Monday, Madison County Sheriff Scott Mellinger said there were 307 inmates housed in the jail.

He said more than 100 of the inmates were women and four of the women are pregnant.

Commissioner Kelly Gaskill said the Madison County Council must appropriate the money to conduct a feasibility study.

County attorney Jonathan Hughes said the commissioners could request proposals for a jail study.

"That would get the county an idea of the cost for the study," he said.

Gaskill said the commissioners should start the process of gathering information.

Finding the funding for a feasibility study could be problematic for the County Council this year.

Following the council's September meeting, Madison County has $291,470 remaining in its rainy day fund and an operating balance of $5.8 million.

Council members have been told there needs to be a minimum of $7 million in the operating balance to start 2020.

Council President Anthony Emery said Thursday any funding for a feasibility study would have to come from the commissioners' budget.

"It's the commissioners that will order the study," he said. "They will have to find the funding. We're financially strapped."

Emery said the council will work with the commissioners on potential funding.

"We decided it's not the right fit for Madison County," Councilman Steve Sumner, who headed up a committee, said earlier this month about the regional jail proposal.

The council did vote to recommend to the Madison County commissioners that the process of conducting a feasibility study for a new jail be started.

Several council members expressed concerns about the increased staffing requirements for a 500-bed facility.

Mellinger has consistently said a new jail for Madison County should house 500 inmates and would take five years to complete.

Madison County administrator Tim Westerfield said if the new jail is constructed correctly with proper surveillance equipment, the county might not have to hire many additional jail officers.

He said there are several ways to finance a new jail at an estimated cost of $50 million.

Mellinger said he was encouraged that both the council and commissioners were moving forward with a feasibility study.

Councilman Jerry Alexander proposed the construction of a substance abuse facility that could alleviate jail overcrowding until a new facility is constructed.

Columbus firefighters rescue cat with an unlikely tool - a leaf blower

By JULIE MCCLURE
(Columbus) The Republic

Columbus firefighters were the cat's pajamas when it came to the rescue of a pet cat that went missing from a guest room at the Econo Lodge Inn and Suites.

Firefighters were called to the hotel at 161 Carrie Lane at 9:47 a.m. Wednesday and learned that Molly, a 2-year-old cat, was last seen late Tuesday night after her owners went to sleep for the night.

Nora and Frank Rollen told firefighters they stopped at the motel last night as they were traveling home to Florida. Frank Rollen said that they attempted to find lodging in the Indianapolis area, but choose the Columbus Econo Lodge because it was a pet-friendly motel, said Capt. Mike Wilson, Columbus Fire Department spokesman. Frank Rollen told firefighters that when he and his wife awoke this morning, there was no sign of Molly.

While searching the room, Rollen discovered a small hole in a wall located under a sink. Suspecting that Molly may have entered the hole, the Rollens called out to Molly, but she didn't return. Fearing the worst, a call was placed to the Columbus Fire Department asking for assistance, Wilson said.

Columbus Fire Department Engine Co. 5 arrived on the scene a short time after the call and located a small opening in an interior wall separating the sleeping room from the bathroom, Wilson said.

Firefighters peered into the small hole with a flashlight, but were unable to see the cat. Confident that the Molly had entered the opening and was now unable to exit, firefighters consulted with motel management, and a plan to remove a portion of drywall was established.

After removing a 2-foot by 2-foot section of drywall, firefighters could see a portion of Molly tucked behind the bathtub area in a void space.

When crews tried to reach for Molly, she moved away from the location where she was first seen. Unable to reach the cat, firefighters asked Nora Rollen to come to the wall opening and call for Molly, Wilson said.

After a few moments, and with Molly likely scared of the firefighter's attempts to rescue her, firefighters decided to exit the room to allow Molly time to calm down. Firefighters advised the Rollens that Molly would likely emerge when the scene became less chaotic.

In the event that Molly did not return, firefighters provided the fire station phone number and an invitation to call back. After two hours of calling out to Molly, the Rollens called firefighters back to the scene for assistance.

When firefighters returned to the scene, they knew that the distance from the wall opening to the location of the cat was too far for a direct grab of Molly, Wilson said. On their first visit, they attempted to use a long wooden dowel to reach the area of the cat, but the cat moved to the opposite side of the void space surrounding the bathtub.

The second attempt would require a new, never before used tactic, Wilson said.

Using the fire station's leaf blower, firefighters placed the blower into the void space opposite of where Molly was seen watching their every move. When the blower introduced air into the space, Molly ran from her hiding place and was reunited with her owners. Molly was uninjured during the incident, Wilson said.

The firefighters leaf blower strategy worked purr-fectly, Wilson deadpanned.

While resident gets married, guest steals tools worth thousands of dollars from home

By MAGEN KRITSCH
Daily Journal of Johnson County

Franklin police recovered thousands of dollars worth of stolen tools and arrested a man after he sent social media messages to 10 people asking them to buy tools police said he had stolen.

Christian Alexander Alstott, 23, of Franklin was arrested on charges of theft/receiving stolen property. The prosecutor has filed the charge as a level 6 felony. Alstott was a wedding guest of the man he stole from, and the theft happened during the victim's wedding festivities.

Franklin detective Lt. Scott Summers recovered 2,500 messages from Facebook as part of the investigation and got back nearly all of the stolen tools for the victim, who used the tools for work and was burglarized while he was getting married, Summers said.

The tools were worth more than $3,500, according to a report from the Franklin Police Department.

A resident of Julia Street reported on Sept. 1 that he was missing thousands of dollars worth of tools from his garage, the report said.

The man had gotten married the day before and told police he returned home and the tools were missing.

He suspected Alstott because cards were missing from his wedding reception, which Alstott attended, and Alstott had stayed the night with a relative in his home, the report said.

Police began investigating and found several people who said Alstott had tried to sell them tools through Facebook messenger. One man told police that Alstott told him he had received the tools from a relative, according to the report.

Another man told police that Alstott offered him money if he helped him sell the tools, the report said.

Summers went to Alstott's home and a relative allowed police to look in a shed on the property. A majority of the stolen items were in the shed, the report said.

Alstott gave police multiple reasons for having the tools, but Summers told him that they knew about the messages, even if Alstott had deleted them, the report said.

Alstott, of 837 Franklin Lakes Blvd., was arrested and taken to the Johnson County Jail.

Cummins Inc. celebrates 3-millionth Ram turbo engine

By KIRK JOHANNESEN
(Columbus) The Republic

At a time when Cummins Inc. is undergoing change, branching into alternative forms of power, the company saluted a product that's been a staple for three decades.

The Columbus-based company celebrated the production of the 3 millionth turbo diesel engine for the Ram truck on Friday at its Midrange Engine Plant at Walesboro.

Cummins and Ram representatives were joined in the plant's staging area by first-shift employees and a group of 20 "founding fathers" who have been employed at the plant for more than 30 years to mark the occasion. The milestone engine that rolled off the assembly line Sept. 19 was on display for all to see in a staging area.

"I'm just thrilled to be here today with all of you to celebrate a monumental event. … So many people inside this room and outside this room made this happen," said Melina Kennedy, executive director of Cummins Pickup Business.

A banner that highlights the milestone achievement was unveiled, hanging from a ceiling beam, and will be displayed permanently at the plant.

Ram, a division of Fiat Chrysler Automobiles, which made a commemorative truck for the 1 millionth engine, plans to give the purchaser of the truck containing the milestone engine a commemorative engine breather cover that Cummins made, said Cummins spokeswoman Katie Zarich.

Cummins, a 100-year-old global power company and diesel engine maker, has branched into electrification and hydrogen fuel cell technology. It launched its Electrified Power business segment at the start of 2018. It designs and manufactures electric and hybrid powertrain systems. Earlier this month, Cummins completed the purchase of Hydrogenics Corp., which develops and manufactures fuel cell modules and hydrogen production technologies.

However, it keeps motoring on with production of turbo diesel engines for Ram.

The Cummins-Ram partnership started in 1988, with a 5.9-liter engine for the Ram 2500 and 3500 models for the 1989 model year. Cummins replaced the 5.9-liter engine with a 6.7-liter version in 2007, which is still produced today and made at the Midrange Engine Plant.

"We've had plants that have made 3 million engines, but this is the first time we've ever done it for one customer. We're very unique in that way," said Nikki Wheeldon, manager of Cummins Midrange Engine Plant.

Wheeldon described the Cummins-Ram partnership as a good relationship.

"Our engine kind of sells their truck and their truck is an amazing truck. It works really well together," she added.

At a ceremony in October 2006 celebrating the 1.5 millionth Cummins turbo diesel engine for Ram, Cummins said it believed the 6.7-liter engine would satisfy customers because it offered more power and torque, produces half the noise and is cleaner because it uses ultra-low sulfur diesel.

The length of the partnership between Cummins and Ram is rare in the auto industry these days, said Mike Koval, director of U.S. Ram brand product marketing.

"What is demonstrates is a dedication to similar sets of values … that really bore the test of time," Koval said, referencing the importance of quality, reliability and durability. "We know that our success is mutually earned."

AT A GLANCE

Cummins Inc. has been manufacturing turbo diesel engines for Ram trucks since 1988, when it began producing a 5.9-liter engine for the 2500 and 2500 models. Cummins currently makes a 6.7-liter engine for Ram trucks, a division of Fiat Chrysler Automobiles. The engines are made at Cummins Midrange Engine Plant at Walesboro.

Attack on city worker; $500K bond, 10 counts

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

A Jefferson County man is accused of dragging a city worker from his truck and assaulting him and is facing 10 charges and a $500,000 cash bond after appearing in Superior Court Friday.

The charges against Rob Rohrer III, 45, include kidnapping, strangulation, intimidation, criminal confinement, battery resulting in bodily injury, resisting law enforcement, three counts of theft and another count of battery. The hearing was before Magistrate Nancy Jacobs.

Jefferson County Sheriff's Officer Jeff Neace received a call about 8 a.m. last Tuesday about a suspicious man standing in the roadway on Galaway Trails and blocking traffic, according to his affidavit. Neace said he arrived at the scene to find that Detective Yancy Denning had arrived slightly earlier and was talking with Rohrer, who was blocking the roadway. Neace asked Rohrer, who he said he had known for years, to move out of the road and onto the sidewalk. Rohrer agreed, and Neace and Denning both agreed he appeared not to be dangerous, Neace said. The officers then left.

At 12:08 p.m., Neace received another call about Rohrer.

Witness and area resident Tayra Bright told Neace and Officer Charles Gilles that Rohrer had stopped a city truck, pulled a man out and begun assaulting him. The affidavit said Bright later told Officer Nathan Green that he forced the city employee, Nathan Bennett, to the ground and began choking him, screaming that he was going to kill him.

The affidavit said Bright said she ran over to help and saw a box cutter belonging to Bennett laying on the ground close to Rohrer. Rohrer told Bright to hand the knife to him because he was going to "kill this (deleted)," the affidavit said.

The affidavit said Bright then grabbed the knife and called 911, and Rohrer let go of Bennett. Bennett and Bright ran to the garage of another resident, Timothy Skirvin, who closed and locked the door.

Rohrer tried to assault another city worker, George "Mickey" McCullough, when he pulled up in his city truck, the affidavit said. McCullough, who was a much larger man, the affidavit said, resisted Rohrer's attempts to pull him out of the truck and forced him away, causing Rohrer to start walking in the opposite direction.

Rohrer then approached another city worker, Wendil Kiser, and stole the keys out of his vacuum truck as police were arriving.

When Neace and Gilles arrived, they found Rohrer standing in the street with a bottle of water and the keys in hand. His mother, Debbie Rohrer, with whom he was living, was nearby yelling that Rohrer was mentally ill and needed help. Rohrer told Neace he had to "get that guy up there, he has a gun and wants to kill everyone," pointing at the city workers, the affidavit said. McCullough pointed back at Rohrer and said he was the one trying to kill people, and Kiser told Neace he had stolen his keys. Neace drew his taser and ordered Rohrer to the ground.

After ordering him four to six times and pleading with him to cooperate, Neace deployed his taser and sent a noncompliant Rohrer to the ground, the affidavit said. He refused Neace's orders to roll over on his stomach, pulled the taser wires out and began to get up again before Neace deployed his taser another time. Rohrer again tried to pull the wires out and get up a second time, which prompted Neace to hit the arc switch, about the time Officer Green arrived at the scene. Rohrer tried getting up a third time, prompting Neace and Green to force him onto the ground. The officers had to force Rohrer's hands behind his back to handcuff him, since he also refused to do so.

Neace, Gilles and Chief Deputy Josh Taylor took Rohrer to the Jefferson County Jail while Green stayed behind to get witness statements.

Rohrer may face additional charges after another incident Friday morning when he tried to force his way out of his cell, Prosecutor David Sutter said. He also said the incident resulted in a higher bond, which the state had recommended be $250,000 in the affidavit.

Rohrer's pretrial hearing is scheduled for Dec. 17 at 8:30 a.m.

Truck driver charged in death of Bedford man

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A Trimble County man died Sunday in a crash on Interstate 64 in Franklin County and the driver of a semi-truck has been charged with manslaughter in the accident.

Jeffrey Curtis, 61, of Bedford, was pronounced dead at the scene at 6:16 p.m. on Sunday by the Franklin County Coroner's Office.

The accident was reported at 5:15 p.m. on I-64 westbound near exit 58 when a semi-truck rear-ended a Jeep Liberty driven by Curtis, causing both vehicles to crash into a Ford Explorer. The interstate was closed for several hours Sunday night while police investigated the crash. The tractor-trailer traveled off the shoulder of the roadway into the grass and over a culvert.

Kentucky State Police said 45-year-old Jerry Elder Jr. of Flint, Michigan, was charged with manslaughter and lodged in the Franklin County jail after an investigation determined that his truck hit the other vehicles due to "distracted" driving.

"He was distracted by his phone playing a video mounted on his dash and did not recognize the slowed traffic in time to avoid a collision," the arrest citation said.

In addition, Elder was also not wearing his prescription corrective lenses, which is required by his commercial driver's license and medical card, according to the arrest citation.

The driver of the Ford Explorer, Trina Summers, 61, and Elder were both transported to the Franklin Regional Medical Center with non-life threatening injuries.

Upon his release from the hospital, Elder was charged with second-degree manslaughter and additional charges will follow, state police said. He has been placed in the Franklin County Regional Jail.

An investigation is ongoing by Kentucky State Police Post 12 detectives and collision reconstruction units.

Online jail records do not specify whether Elder has an attorney.

Crash kills teen

Courier Staff Report

A Batesville teen died and another was injured in a pickup truck crash Saturday on Legion Road in Ripley County.

The Ripley County Sheriff's Office and Indiana State Police responded to the single-vehicle accident at about 11:45 a.m. Saturday, according to a post by Indiana State Police Sgt. Stephen Wheeles of District 42 in Versailles.

Kaleb G. Norton, 17, of Batesville, was a passenger in a 2003 Dodge Ram driven by Caleb W.D. Zapfe, 16, of Batesville, when the truck left the roadway for an unknown reason. Zapfe overcorrected, causing the vehicle to leave the north side of the road and overturn, police said.

Norton was ejected from the vehicle and pronounced him dead at the scene by the Ripley County Coroner's Office. Wheeles said it did not appear that he was wearing a seatbelt.

Zapfe received non-life-threatening injuries.

mayor from City Hall for the final time to the North Madison Christian Church for a visitation Saturday that was attended by an estimated 800, pedestrians again stopped on the street, standing in respect.

Many who attended the visitations, services and other tributes throughout the weekend commented that it was just the kind of weekend the mayor would have loved — full of quintessentially Madison activities.

Those who spoke at the Sunday afternoon funeral at the church looked at the mayor's life as one of service.

"As mayor, he did what he thought was best for Madison," said Andrew Forrester, former community relations director for the city who worked with the mayor on many city projects, attended the same church and was his close friend.

But, Forrester also said, "being mayor was a bit surreal" for Welch, noting that the spotlight was not his most comfortable place.

He recalled Welch directing traffic during the 2018 fire at the Ohio Theatre or wading into floodwaters to help at another time. He laughed as he talked about the day after Welch was elected mayor for the first time. The mayor left Madison to fly to the side of his daughter, Kirsty Henderson, and her husband, Kyle, as they awaited the birth of a child.

Forrester said Welch's first official interview as mayor was given by phone from inside a bathroom at the hospital.

Nicole Welch, who is married to the mayor's son, Collin, recalled that a few weeks ago, the mayor was part of a group of family members who went with her and the children to Hargan Matthews Park. As they walked on the street toward the park, she noticed the mayor pick up a discarded cup.

" 'I'm just helping clean up the walkway,' " she said he told them. His example led the group to all start picking up trash along the way until their hands were filled when they reached a trash container. "Damon was a man who picked up the trash," she told mourners. "He truly led by example."

Collin Welch said he saw "peace in my dad, a peace that transcended his circumstances.

"Dad had disagreements with people," he said, "but he still was kind to them."

Daughter Gaeli Batts of Madison spoke for her mother, Ginny Kelly Welch, her siblings, and other members of the Welch family, when she told the mourners, "Thank you so much. We are hurting, but we hear your prayers."

Brother Bob Hicks is the lead pastor of the North Madison Christian Church, the church that had been Welch's home for decades, the church where Welch's children grew up and where his unwavering faith was felt throughout the church's activities and members.

Hicks talked about the loss being felt throughout the community and the uncertainty about life ahead without the presence of Welch. But, he reminded everyone, what he said Welch understood and believed:

"Living a life of worship here on the Earth will always give you a next step."

Quoting from the Bible, he said he was confident the words Welch heard Wednesday morning were "Well done, good and faithful servant."

As the services ended, members of the Major Samuel Woodfill Post No. 9 of the American Legion filed past to stand at attention and salute the casket of the former U.S. Air Force captain.

The 157-vehicle funeral procession led by Madison police and firefighters then wound south on U.S. 421 to take the mayor through the streets of Madison and stop for one last moment in front of City Hall before making its way north on S.R. 56 onto S.R. 62 and to the Veterans Memorial Cemetery on Madison's Hilltop.

City workers were in place along the route to monitor and help direct traffic and in front of city hall, where a crowd of onlookers gathered. Hundreds lined the full route to pay respects.

Before the sun began to set, the final services at Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery had ended, the mourners had left, downtown activities had quieted, the first shovels of dirt were turned at the Cotton Mill and Madison had paid its farewell tribute to Mayor Damon Welch.

but there were other aspects of the project — like the historical significance of repurposing an old building and his family's roots in southern Indiana — that made the project a good fit for his company.

"My grandpa actually started the hotel business for our family in Vincennes and he actually did a very similar project where he bought an old show horse stable and turned the horse stalls into guest rooms," Dora laughed. "So when John and Glen and Ron reached out to us and asked if we were interested in helping them out with this project it really grabbed our attention right away. It allowed me to get back to the roots of what we do — a good hotel in a small community. ..."

The list of people who made the project happen is long, but the name that resurfaced over and over was that of Welch, the Madison mayor who championed the project throughout his eight years on city council and two terms as mayor until his sudden passing earlier in the week, just three days before a groundbreaking that he had worked for and dreamed about for so long.

"He'd met with previous owners who'd tried to make a hotel project work but the timing wasn't right. He talked with other developers and architects who said the only project that would work in the building was subsidized housing," Schell, the city's planner and preservation coordinator said. "Through it all, Damon continued to press for the best project for this city — a hotel and meeting center. This amazing team came together two years ago and we made it happen. Without Damon's leadership, passion and dedication this project would not have happened."

"The Cotton Mill hotel project will go down in history as a testament to Mayor Damon Welch's commitment and dedication to the city that he loved," said acting Madison Mayor Dan Dattilo. "In fact, the project would not have happened if it wasn't for Mayor Welch and his administration. It's a perfect example of what happens when investors, government and city government work together."

One of those working closely with Welsh was former Madison Community Relations Director Andrew Forrester, who resigned last week to take a job in the Governor's Office. He said Welch's insight and commitment and Bob Cook's tenacity to find matching funding will finally make the project a reality.

"Mayor Welch liked to call this a game changer for Madison," Forrester said. "He used that phrase innumerable times over the last few years. And it most certainly is. It's a game changer for our riverfront, it's a game changer for our tourism, a game changer for our economy and our downtown, a game changer for our festivals, a game changer for our gateway into the community and a game changer for our community's self image to the rest of the region.

"Damon was so looking forward to this day and to the day that it opened to the public, which is why I know he'd want us here today turning dirt even as we mourn his passing," Forrester added. "But the bottom line is that the future of Madison, the future of this neighborhood and the future of Madison residents who follow us will be bright thanks to this project and all those who have worked to get it to this day. Thank you very much. Let's turn some dirt."

When the time came to pick up shovels, one gold shovel stood untouched in memory and honor of Welch, whose funeral would be on Sunday. A moment of silence in his memory was also observed earlier.

"Today he would have been here smiling ear-to-ear because the Cotton Mill project was a project he'd worked on since he took office and now it is finally coming to fruition," Schell said.

"From the moment Damon and Bob and I walked into City Hall in 2012, this project was been on our minds as it has been on the minds of most Madison residents for years," Forrester said. "We were always trying to find a way to make it happen. Previous administrations, previous city councils, mayors and many community members have worked to find a way to make this happen but the timing was never right. I'm really proud to say that thanks to Bob Cooke, Nicole, our Stellar designation which was extremely important, Ron, the investors, Vince Dora, our elected officials and all of you here today the time is right for this project."

Eder wins playoff to earn berth to state finals

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

Madison's Keara Eder outlasted arguably the toughest regional field in the state to earn her first berth to the IHSAA Girls Golf State Finals on Saturday.

Eder, a sophomore, shot a 78 to place fifth as an individual on the Smock Golf Course in Indianapolis then defeated Franklin's Ava Ray in a playoff to become the first Cub to qualify for the state finals since Amanda Detmer in 2014.

"My mindset coming in was that I can do this and I can beat everybody here and my teacher Mr. (Shannon) Barger gave me a goal and I was shooting for that goal. I missed it, but I ended up winning and that made me so happy," Eder said.

"I really didn't know how close I was going to be to the cut. Last year the cut was 78 and that's what I shot so I knew that I was going to be close."

Eder's round started rough, with a bogey on No. 1, but she quickly regrouped, collecting pars on the next five holes. She made the turn at two-over and although she slipped a bit on the back, she played well enough to remain in contention for advancement.

Initially, it didn't look like her 78 would be good enough. Zionsville's Annabelle Pancake lapped the field with an eight-under 64 and her teammate Abby Thielbar and Guerin Catholic's Christina Pfefferkorn each shot 72s.

Eder's 78 ended up tying Ray for the fifth and final spot and a playoff was needed to determine who moved on. The two golfers are close friends and Eder said that while it was tough facing off with her, she also enjoyed the experience.

"It's really tough because you don't want to take down a friend and ruin their chance to go to state but it's also fun because you get a chance to play with your friend and you're not

Southwestern goes 4-0 to win Baum Invite

TOURNAMENT WINNER: Southwestern's volleyball team won four matches — including a three-setter over North Decatur in the championship — to win the Marc Baum Memorial on Saturday. (Submitted photo)

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Southwestern defeated North Decatur in three hard-fought games to win the Marc Baum Volleyball Tournament at Southwestern on Saturday.

The Rebels went 4-0 while North Decatur was 3-1 and third place finisher Paoli finished 3-1. Austin went 2-2, South Central and Shawe both went 1-2 and Carroll County and Trimble County were both 0-3.

"Today was a great day for our team. I thought we played strong all day in each match," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said. "Our defense was fundamentally solid and communicated well. Offensively we were aggressive and took hard swings but I also thought we were more purposeful with our attacks today. The hitters were really going for certain locations and seeing the floor well. Energy levels were outstanding and I think all of the girls did a great job individually choosing a positive,

Hanover pulls away from Bluffton, 28-10

HANOVER ROUNDUP

By JORDAN BEAR
Special to the Courier

Timely scoring and a solid defensive effort were the keys for Hanover football as it opened up Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference play with a 28-10 win over Bluffton at Alumni Stadium on Saturday.

Bluffton (0-4, 0-1 HCAC) struck first on the scoreboard when Jake Baumgartner kicked a 35-yard field goal to give the Beavers a 3-0 lead. Hanover responded by marching down the field and scoring when Carson Plessinger, normally a defensive player, rushed in on a 5-yard touchdown run to give Hanover a 7-3 lead just before the end of the first quarter.

Hanover (3-1, 1-0 HCAC) added another touchdown midway through the second quarter when junior Shawn Coane rushed in from a yard out to put Hanover on top 14-3 at halftime.

Bluffton made an offensive change at halftime, moving starting quarter back Ryan Markoff to wide receiver and inserting Zachary Nobis at quarterback. Hanover initially struggled with Nobis, who pulled Bluffton within one score by throwing a 9-yard touchdown pass to Markoff to make the score 14-10.

However, Hanover responded with Noah Wezensky tossing a 31-yard touchdown pass to Connor Gibson and then capped its scoring on another 1-yard touchdown run by Coane for the 28-10 final score.

"I think Bluffton did a great job of scheming us, they took some things away that we did and we never really got into that rhythm of consistent execution," Hanover coach Matt Theobold said.

Theobald also praised his offensive line for giving Wezensky time in the pocket.

"We've got a really solid group of six that rotate in and out together; they're a good unit; they're kind of a team within the team," Theobald said. "They've been so good together and coach (Matthew) Brown does a great job with them, but give credit to Bluffton today, they did a tremendous job defensively."

Senior defensive back Kaleb Grabert, who's playing in only his second game since returning from a hamstring injury, noted the defense for its play.

"I thought our defense was great, by the end of the game we were clicking on all cylinders," Grabert said. "Coach (Aarik) Gault does a great job getting us prepared for each game, everyone just goes out and does their job, nobody tried to do anything more or less, and we got the job done and that's what it comes down to."

Hanover remains at home this coming Saturday when it welcomes in Anderson for another HCAC matchup as well as homecoming. Kickoff is slated for 1:30 p.m.

Reds beat Pirates 3-1 in season finale

By WILL GRAVES
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pirates will head into the offseason searching for a new voice after firing Clint Hurdle. The Cincinnati Reds may have found theirs during a season that offered tangible proof that years of rebuilding might finally be producing forward momentum.

The evidence came in a 3-1 victory over Pittsburgh on Sunday. Aristides Aquino finished off two scintillating months by hitting his 19th home run. Brian O'Grady and Alex Blandino went deep too to help Tyler Mahle to his first win since May as Cincinnati finished 75-87 during first-year manager David Bell, an eight-win improvement over 2018 and the club's best record since a 76-86 mark in 2014.

"We progressed a lot from last year," said Mahle, who tossed five shutout innings. "I think the team's only going to get better. I think we're on the right track."

Filling in with Trevor Bauer sidelined by an illness, Mahle gave up three hits with five strikeouts to pick up his first victory since May 31, a span of 13 starts.

"I told (Mahle), some results or certain stats do not define a season in our mind," Bell said. "We felt like it was a strong one and a good step for him. I'm glad he got to finish strong just to take that into the offseason."

Eugenio Suarez went 0 for 4 to finish with 49 home runs. Michael Lorenzen worked the ninth for his seventh save as Cincinnati won in Pittsburgh for the second time in less than 24 hours after snapping a 12-game losing streak with a 12-inning victory on Saturday night.

While Aquino's pace slowed a bit after hitting 14 home runs in August, he ended the season with 19 home runs and 47 RBIs in 56 games after connecting off Williams in the second. The 25-year-old entered the day tied for ninth among major league rookies in home runs even though he didn't debut until Aug. 1.

"It's been very impressive how he's handled when he's not hot," Bell said. "Just steady. He's really intelligent and has a great way about him. To me, he proved he belongs here. Just the way he handled himself when he was doing great. It's nice to see him finish strong too."

HURDLE FIRED

Jose Osuna delivered an RBI single for Pittsburgh. Trevor Williams (7-9) gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings. Tom Prince managed the Pirates, who parted ways with Hurdle after nine seasons shortly before the game's first pitch.

Hurdle went 735-720 with Pittsburgh, leading the team to three straight playoff appearances from 2013-15. The club's fortunes have ebbed since winning 98 games in 2015. The Pirates finished 69-93 this season, the franchise's worst mark since dropping a major-league worst 105 games in 2010, the year before Hurdle arrived.

Hurdle addressed the team before leaving PNC Park before the first pitch of what Prince called one of "the tough days of baseball."

"Some of us have been around a while and hurts a little bit," Prince said.

BYE STEVE

Steve Blass ended his 60-year professional relationship with the Pirates on Sunday when the former pitcher and longtime analyst called his final game.

Blass joined the organization in 1960 as an amateur free agent from Farms Village, Connecticut. He reached the majors in 1964 and went on to play for the Pirates for 10 seasons, the high point coming in 1971 when he threw a complete game in Game 7 of the World Series to push Pittsburgh past Baltimore for the title.

Williams stepped off the mound and tipped his gap to Blass before throwing the first pitch.

SOCCER ROUNDUP

Lady Pacers fall in River Battle Invite title game

Centerville defeated Switzerland County in penalty kicks to win the third annual River Battle Invitational girls soccer tournament on Saturday in Vevay.

After playing to a scoreless first half, Switzerland County went ahead 1-0 on a Matty Anderson goal off an assist from Raylinn Kappes. Centerville tied the scored a few minutes later on a free kick and regulation ended in a 1-1 tie.

Per tournament rules, the game went straight to penalty kicks where Centerville won 4-2 to claim the 2-1 win.

"It was fun to play Centerville. A very classy group of ladies, coaches and parents." Switzerland coach Tully Anderson said. "We left everything we had on the field. One mix-up on one play cost us. I told the girls this was a learning experience for them for sectionals. We will be ready."

In the semifinals, Switzerland County defeated Gallatin County 3-1. Kappes and Matty Anderson combined on the first two goals with Kappes scoring the first and Anderson the second. Kayley Jones capped the scoring with an unassisted goal.

Centerville defeated Carroll County 4-1 in the second semifinal.

Switzerland, now 7-3-3 overall, closes out the regular season when it travels to Gallatin County on Thursday.

Madison boys battle Bedford NL to 3-3 draw

Madison and Bedford North Lawrence battled to a 3-3 draw in boys soccer Saturday in Madison.

The Cubs built leads of 2-0 and 3-2 in the match but the Stars rallied both times. Jacob Kolk provided the tying goal on a late free kick.

Carson Denton and Carson Roark each scored early goals as Madison pushed ahead 2-0. Bedford answered with goals by Lakota Terrell and Danny Cline to tied the game.

Denton's second goal on a penalty kick with 10 minutes to play put Madison back on top but Kolk's free kick secured the tie.

The game marks the second time in the past week and a half that Madison has squandered a two-goal lead against a Hoosier Hills Conference opponent and had to settle for a tie. The Cubs allowed two penalty kicks in a one-minute span against Seymour in a 2-2 draw.

Madison, now 8-4-2 overall and 1-2-2 HHC, wraps up the regular season this week with a home game against New Albany on Tuesday and a road trip to Floyd Central on Thursday.

Hilltoppers lose 2-1 to ORVC-rival Rising Sun

Shawe fell 2-1 to Rising Sun at home on Friday.

After trailing 2-0 at the half, Shawe got a goal by Gage Dermon on an assist from Jack Grote with just under 10 minutes to play but was unable to get the equalizer.

Shawe, now 3-7-1 overall and 3-6-1 Ohio River Valley Conference, was to visit Class A No. 10 Jac-Cen-Del on Monday and to Milan on Wednesday.

Reb tennis falls 4-1

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern's boys tennis team dropped a 4-1 decision on Friday.

Jordan DeAtley picked up the Rebels' lone win at No. 2 singles, 6-0, 6-1.

Southwestern, now 10-3 on the season, was to host Charlestown on Monday and will play in the IHSAA Sectional Tournament, along with Madison, at Greensburg later this week. The draw for the sectional was to be Monday night.

playing with somebody you don't know," Eder said.

Eder was the only local golfer to even come close to breaking through the incredibly difficult field. As a team, Madison shot a 404 — good for 15th out of 18 squads — while Southwestern was 16th with a 415.

Grace Bronkella followed Eder with a 99 for the Cubs, Jenna Imel had a 101 and Alivia Brawner and Ally Skirvin each shot 126.

Ellie Foley led Southwestern with a 96, Belle Crawford shot a 103, Bella Marcum had a 104 and Adalyn Leach and Shahala Brown both carded 112s.

Zionsville, ranked No. 3 in the final statewide poll, won the regional title with a 299 while fifth-ranked Carmel was second with a 313 and fourth-ranked Westfield was third with a 316 as all three qualified for the team state finals. Four ranked teams, Center Grove (seventh), Franklin (11th), Brownsburg (17th), and Guerin Catholic (20th) failed to advance out of the tough regional.

The opening round of the IHSAA State Finals will tee off at 8:30 a.m. on Friday at Prairie View Golf Course in Carmel. 36-hole event will conclude on Saturday.

aggressive attitude to play with today."

Southwestern opened pool play with a 25-18, 25-12 win over Austin then defeated Carroll County 25-12, 25-8 and South Central 25-9, 25-22.

In the championship, the Rebels beat North Decatur 25-21, 20-25, 15-13.

Ashleigh Ream had seven kills and 36 digs for the Rebels on the day. Elle Ford had 23 kills, Kylie Eccles had 27 kills and 16 digs, Autumn Harmon had 11 kills, Marissa Naylor had 14 kills and 26 digs., Meaghan Kramer had 72 assists and 18 digs, Hayley Fresh had five kills, and Abby Fulton was 49-for-50 serving and 24 digs.

The tournament is named after Marc Baum, the long-time scorekeeper for Southwestern volleyball who died this summer.

"This is our way of honoring a truly great man that cared more about others than himself. Hopefully this tournament serves as an annual reminder for everyone to be a kind and generous person and help to celebrate the positive influence Marc had on Southwestern Volleyball," Johnson said. "We had a great crowd behind us and we won a tournament that has a very special place in my heart. Marc Baum was a great friend of mine and someone I miss very much. I'm sure he was proud of the way we played today."

Shawe opened the tournament with a three-set win over Trimble County in pool play before falling 25-16, 25-15 to North Decatur and to Paoli.

Trimble County lost 25-9, 25-15 to Paoli and to North Decatur.

Southwestern, now 15-11 on the season, travels to New Washington on Tuesday. The Rebels then host South Ripley on Thursday.

Shawe, now 3-14 on the season, travels to Christian Academy of Madison on Monday, hosts Switzerland County on Tuesday and travels to Crothersville on Friday.

Trimble County, now 1-14 on the season, travels to Beth Haven on Monday, to Shelby County on Tuesday and hosts Henry County on Thursday.

Mitchell rushes for nearly 600 yards in 52-20 win over Madison

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

MITCHELL — It's safe to say that there is no football game that Mitchell looks forward to more than Madison.

A year after amassing 430 yards on the ground and rolling to a 22-point win, the Blue Jackets once again had their way with the Cubs with 628 total yards and a dominating 52-20 win on Friday.

As Yogi Berra would say, it was like déjà vu all over again.

Mitchell scored 32 points in the second quarter and looked unstoppable at times. Madison stayed with the Blue Jackets for the first quarter-plus and trailed only 14-12 three minutes into the second half.

But using a multi-back offense — led by senior Dorian Duncan who had 209 yards rushing in the first half — Mitchell quickly took control and pulled away to score the easy win.

"We've got some injuries but as I told the guys, I'm done making excuses. That should have been better than it was," Madison coach Leroy Wilson said. "We're going to be back to work on Monday and refocus for Jeff."

The Blue Jackets (3-3) methodically worked their way down field for their first score, a 4-yard misdirection by Nathan Reynolds. The two-point conversion failed but Mitchell led 6-0.

Madison came right back with its own impressive drive, getting a 3-yard quarterback keeper by Parker Jones just before halftime. The extra point kick failed and the score was tied 6-6.

The two teams traded touchdowns early in the second half with Mitchell getting an 8-yard run by Duncan — and a subsequent two-point run — and Madison answering right away with a Bryce Foy 81-yard kickoff return for the score. The Cubs failed on their conversion run but they only trailed 14-12 with just over nine minutes left in the half.

The rest of the quarter belonged to the Blue Jackets. Austin Shaffer ripped off a 34-yard score, Duncan had a 45-yard run, and Dane Pritchett caught a 5-yard pass from Luke Lafevor. Mitchell got two-pointers on all three touchdowns and led 38-12 at halftime.

The Blue Jackets finished the half with 399 yards rushing including 209 from Dorian.

"We just didn't adjust," Wilson said of the second quarter. "We knew this was going to be a dogfight. They came out in that double tight, pounding the ball and it's like Novocaine, eventually one pops free. We didn't fight back as well as I had hoped."

Madison opened the second half with a score when running back Trenton Barnes tossed a 16-yard pass to quarterback Parker Jones and Barnes added the two-pointer to cut the lead to 38-20. It was the second-straight week that the pair hooked up for a score on that play.

But the Cubs couldn't get the break they needed to get back into the game. Madison recovered a fumble on Mitchell's next drive, but promptly gave it right back on downs. The Blue Jackets then took advantage of the short field to score another touchdown — this one on an 18-yard run by Lefevor — to push ahead 46-20.

Mitchell added a final touchdown early in the fourth quarter on an 11-yard run by Reynolds.

The Blue Jackets finished the game with 628 total yards, 591 of which came on the ground. Duncan finished with 253 rushing yards on 23 carries while Lafevor had 115 yards on 12 attempts and Shaffer had 96 yards.

Madison, meanwhile, managed just 174 total yards, 159 of which came through the air on 11-of-26 passing by Jones. Colin Yancey had five catches for 64 yards.

After three weeks on the road, Madison finally returns home for just the second time this season when the Cubs host Jeffersonville on homecoming. Wilson knows that his team has its work cut out, but he's not backing away.

"We as coaches are going to get back to work and make sure these guys are ready to play," Wilson said. "We've got a lot of work to do to get ready for Jeff and injuries don't matter. We've just got to play football."

Switzerland now 5-1

Switzerland County pulled away late to post a 40-12 win over non-conference Rock Creek Academy in football Friday at home.

The Pacers led only 14-6 at halftime but pulled away in the second half for the win.

Switzerland, now 5-1 on the season for the first time in program history, returns to Mid-Indiana Football Conference play next Friday when it travels to South Decatur.

Volleyball sweeps Wilmington in 3 sets

Hanover volleyball picked up a straight-set sweep over Wilmington (Ohio), winning 25-12, 25-16, 25-20 on the road on Friday.

Adrianne Vance had 11 kills on 34 attacks while Carlie Burson and Kelsey Ketcham each had eight kills. Ketcham also had 28 assists and 12 digs, Amber Miller had 15 digs, Ally Williams had 14 digs, and Emma Rolf had 11 digs and six kills.

Hanover, now 10-5 on the season, hosts Saint-Mary-of-the-Woods on Tuesday and travels to Defiance (Ohio) on Saturday, Oct. 5.

Men's soccer ties Spalding, beats Capital

Hanover and Spalding (Ky.) battled to a 1-1 double overtime tie in men's soccer Friday in Jeffersonville.

The Golden Eagles scored first, getting a goal by Kasim Alsalman in the 18th minute.

Spalding maintained that 1-0 lead until late in the game when Carlos Schryver put in the equalizer with just over 10 minutes left in the match. Two overtime sessions failed to produce a winner and the game ended in a tie.

Hanover held an overwhelming 18-3 advantage in shots, but only 6-3 on goal. The Panthers also had 11 corner kicks to just two by the Eagles.

Luke Eppler scored two goals in the span of seven minutes to lift Hanover to a 2-1 win over Capital (Ohio) on Sunday.

Capital took a 1-0 lead on a Mitch Hughes goal just seconds into the second half. Eppler, a sophomore from Evansville, tied the game two minutes later with his first goal and added the eventual game-winner in the 54th minute.

Overall shots were tied 12-12 but Hanover held a 9-1 advantage in shots on goal. Eppler finished with five attempts.

Hanover, now 3-4-1, travels to Manchester on Saturday.

Tennis sweeps both Defiance, Midway

Hanover's women's tennis team picked up wins over Defiance (Ohio) and Midway (Ky.) on Saturday at home.

The Panthers swept Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference rival Defiance 8-0 before beating Midway 7-2.

Chautauqua Festival of Art

Busy downtown Madison as people shop, Chalk Walk

The 2019 Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art is in the history books. Kara Hinze, committee president for this year's festival, said everything went well despite being a hot weekend. Hinze said it will take Chautauqua organizers some time to figure out all of the numbers for this year's festival. One of the more popular events at the annual event is the Chalk Walk, an opportunity to watch artists draw their work on the street. The event is based on an Italian tradition of street painting that dates back to the 16th Century. Using pastels, artists had the chance to choose to reproduce existing artworks or create their own in their designated squares. Judging took place at 5 p.m. Saturday and artists were separated into groups — ages zero to 8, 9 to 14, and overall winners. The winner of the zero to 8 age range was McKenley Copeland (photo right). The winner of the 9-to-14 age range was Lola Perkins (no photo was available). Both received a free T-shirt. The overall winners included: first place, Marissa Martinez (photo left, behind her work), second place winner Kaylie Anstead (no photo available) and third place winner Miriam Jones (no photo available). First place received $100 and a 2019 Chautauqua T-shirt and poster, second place received a 2019 Chautauqua T-shirt and poster, and third place received a 2019 Chautauqua T-shirt. Hoosiers Feeding the Hungry needs meat

Courier staff report

Hoosiers Feeding the Hungry would like to remind all hunters and landowners about its deer donation program.

Hoosier Feeding the Hungry is always accepting donations to fund its "Meat" the Need initiative and is continuously looking for volunteers to help efforts to feed the hungry and reduce hunger issues throughout Indiana. After you've filled your freezer, this program is asking hunters and landowners to help feed those in need by donating meat to this initiative.

Participating local meat processors and butcher shops can accept hunted meat with no charge, which will be processed and donated to area food banks through this initiative. Hoosiers Feeding the Hungry is now partnered with 82 meat processors statewide and encourages the donation of large game and livestock, raises financial support to pay processing fees on these donations and gives this nutritious meat to local hunger relief agencies.

Hoosier Feeding the Hungry's goal is to provide protein-packed meat to hunger relief agencies within Indiana to assist those in need of additional food services. This program works to ensure that these agencies have meat, allowing them to provide fresh nutritious protein for hungry local families. According to the latest Feeding America Map the Meal Gap report, Indiana has 887,070 people struggling with hunger, 273,380 of which are children. This report also says that a third of Indiana residents who are food insecure still don't qualify for assistance.

For more information on the Hoosiers Feeding the Hungry programs, its services and where to find participating meat processors in your area or to find out how you can help, go to www.hoosiersfeedingthehungry.org

BRIDGE

ROM A BALL GAME TO A CARD GAME

Dorothy Draper, who was an interior decorator, said, "Eating is really one of your indoor sports. You play three times a day, and it's well worth while to make the game as pleasant as possible."

Some sports personalities have also been keen bridge players. One who is not well known in the United States is Buster Mottram, who was Britain's top tennis player in the late '70s and early '80s. He was ranked in the top 20 in the world in 1978 and 1982. After quitting the tour, Mottram has had much more time for bridge.

In this deal, he was the declarer in three no-trump. How did he plan the play after West led the heart eight (a MUD lead -- middle, up, down)?

Given the lead, declarer had six top tricks: one spade, three hearts, one diamond and one club. But Mottram realized that he needed the heart jack as a hand entry later in the play. West's lead was from a selection of low cards unless he had specifically the Q-10-8. But if that were the position, the contract was probably unmakable.

After calling for dummy's heart king, Mottram turned his attention to the club suit. All plays would work against a 3-3 break, but if they were 4-2, a doubleton honor was much more likely than a doubleton nine-eight. So, Mottram played a club to the ace and returned the club two.

West won with his king and switched to a diamond. However, Mottram won with dummy's ace, played a heart to his jack and drove out the queen of clubs. Game, set and match to Mottram.

Mind your what?

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I know that I was raised in the Stone Age. But some of the things I remember sure would be nice additions to today's society. They're called manners. I recall my mother saying, "Mind your manners." Whenever she said that, I knew right then that what I was doing was unacceptable.

Manners were not anything written down. They were learned at home. There was no test to be sure you understood what to do and not do. There are too many to list, but I have a few examples:

— Don't eat with your elbows on the table.

— Don't eat with a baseball cap on at the table.

— Always say "please" when asking someone to pass the potatoes. Then reply with a "thank you"

— Never say, "I ain't got no potatoes."

— Hold the door for other people.

— Don't disrupt someone who is talking.

— Learn the phrases "excuse me" and "pardon me," and use them.

— When meeting someone new, hold out your hand to shake their hand.

— Don't talk with your mouth full.

— Open the car door for ladies.

— Pull the chair out for ladies to sit at a table.

Nowadays, when someone says, "Mind your manners," all you get is, "What's a manner?" — Longing for Etiquette

Dear Longing for Etiquette: Thank you for this reminder about the importance of manners. I'm sure that some young people know what manners are, but those who do not are missing out. Manners are a beautiful sign of respect for each other. Here's hoping that old-fashioned manners will come back in style just like some names from older generations have.

Dear Annie: For the woman who wanted her husband to walk her daily two-mile journey with her, perhaps it might be less intimidating to him if they walked short distances, and slowly, at first. Maybe walk a 1/4 mile the first week, and then 1/2 mile the second week, etc. That might seem more manageable for him, if he has been sedentary for a long time.

For the young woman who was newly independent and living with roommates, I have some thoughts about her boredom. She has been leaving jobs after a few months, and I agree that most jobs in the food service industry become boring after a short period of time. Perhaps she could work through her boredom and find the tenacity to stay for at least a year. She would then have more financial security, which is what it sounds like she is seeking. If she could tough it out while perhaps taking courses in a field in which she is interested, she could eventually find a more meaningful and lucrative job that she could stay at for a longer period of time. This could leave her more fulfilled during her employment. Employers like to see resumes where someone has stayed at least a year at one position; this shows integrity.

Thanks for considering my suggestions, and thank you also for your kindness, which is always so prevalent and refreshing in your answers! — Just My Two Cents

Dear Just My Two Cents: I always welcome well-thought-out points of view. Thank you.
